

Bible stories between children & their parents.

Many Bible stories have occupied an important place in the lives of children but how many parents tell these to their children today? How do modern children respond to these stories? Many parents are nervous about the meaning and presentation of the Bible stories and do not know how to respond to their children's questions.

Are these Bible Stories still Alive?

The Diocese of Southwell & Nottingham and the Queen's Foundation, Birmingham are sponsoring an enquiry into the use and meaning of Bible stories in contemporary family life. If you live in England in a family with at least one child and would like to find out more, please contact:
